Legal Ethics
Conference (2001 :
Hempstead, New

Hofstra University School of Law will host Legal Ethics: What Needs Fixing?, its third gathering of nationally recognized scholars, judges and lawyers in the field of legal ethics, Sunday through Tuesday, September 9, 10 and 11, 2001.

Conference speakers will identify major questions about the way lawyers behave, how the legal profession regulates lawyers and how the legal profession and society might better address the problems of governing lawyers.

Speakers will deliver original papers reflecting their particular interests and expertise within the broad framework of the conference theme.

Professors, practicing lawyers, judges, Bar counsel, Bar Association staff, law students and members of the general public are cordially invited to attend. Conference registration materials are included with this pamphlet. For more information, please contact Nancy Rudolph at (516) 463-5306 or visit the conference Web site at www.hofstra.edu/Law/ethics01.html.
