POCKETPART 1992

HOFSTRA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW
HEMPSTEAD, NEW YORK 11550
DEAN'S MESSAGE

The first time I read the Dean’s Message in my Law School Yearbook was when I purchased it shortly before graduation. The next time was about three years later when I was trying to connect a face with the name of a classmate who had referred a client to me. If your pattern follows mine, writing a message for this Yearbook is akin to composing something for a time capsule.

I will be brief and will merely express some of my hopes for you in the future and offer some modest advice.

First, and most importantly, you should be proud of your accomplishments because you have persevered and you have succeeded and that makes you special. It is easy to forget that during the sometimes frustrating and frenetic pace of practicing law.

Second, the faculty and administration of the Law School knows that you are capable and that you are prepared for that which lies ahead. I hope you now share that confidence about yourself.

Third, I hope that you are elated about your successes, fair to yourself when the results are not what you wanted, and that you forgive yourself the inevitable mistakes. Although these wishes are clearly easier to state than to fulfill, I do hope you have been able to develop a realistic perspective on your professional endeavors. To those of you who encounter a so-called “professional crisis,” I hope that you take steps to ensure that you find your work fulfilling and rewarding. If you are proud of the goals or objects of your efforts, the practice of law is, indeed, a noble endeavor.

Lastly, I offer my hope that you will maintain your bonds with your colleagues and classmates and with Hofstra Law School. We will miss the class of 1992. We urge you to remain a part of our community. Our futures are, after all, intertwined.

Stuart Rabinowitz
Dean

Professor Charles Lawrence, Stanford University
First week of law school. . . seeing those Hofstra Law School stickers spring up on the rear windows of cars . . . Hearing that the people who answer questions in class receive the worst grades . . . Understanding that the reason there were parking spots available the first week of school was that the undergraduate classes had not started yet . . . Briefing cases, READING CASES . . . Pierson v. Post . . . The first quality imitations of our professors by our classmates . . . the common scold . . . Hearing about the Agata 500 . . . Playing softball and frisbee in the back before University progress swallowed the field . . . Signing away for $$ LOANS and recalculating what starting salary will be required to make loan payments, and eat at the same time, (thoughts of a new car after graduation are placed on an indefinite hold) . . . Wondering whether a case highlighted in five colors facilitated better comprehension . . . NOT . . . Contemplating which interest meeting to go to during the first Dean’s hour, but listening to your stomach tell you to go to the one with free food . . . Attending ladies night at McHebes for the first time and feeling old . . . Cliques begin to develop in our sections . . . Being warned that the use of Lexis and Westlaw were no no’s . . . Finding Carmine, the Crim Law, stand-up comedian, law-fellow . . . Hearing about MONROE and his inquisitional pedagogical approach . . . Drifting over to the “other side” of campus for lunch and a pleasant change of scenery . . . Jealousy and bewilderment of those who actually taped and transcribed every word of class . . . GILBERTS is good for property . . . and Arthur Miller’s tapes, replete with Ma and Pa’s Guava jelly . . . Not wanting to believe that everyone around you had all their “outlines” up to date, before Thanksgiving . . . I hated those people . . . Moot Court . . . Mooting each other . . . Trying to find the case with THE right answer . . . falling way behind in other class for a lousy two credit brief . . . Weighing the writing competition packet . . . developing rationalizations to justify blowing it off . . . Realizing that there is no correlation between the amount of money you spent on hornbooks and study aids, and your first year grades . . .

A new dean and a new regime . . . Finding out who made the journals . . . and who’s number 1 . . . Point Lookout for some . . . For the fortunate few, wearing a suit to school for on-campus interviews . . . Open Door policies — NOT!! . . . Wheeling and dealing for outlines early in the game, and making a friend in the copy room . . . PAD’S bagel sales . . . The development of STUDENT ACTIVISM AT HOFSTRA LAW: THE 90’S VERSION — complaining about inadequate parking and late grades . . . Colavecchio’s Res Ipsa Loquitor column . . . PJF is born, Bravo Ms. Cook and Company!! . . . Seeing the journal people with those big red folders . . . Drafting your upper class writing requirement, and wondering what to put into your footnotes . . . Hearing about the economy slowing down . . . Gan’s controversial will’s final . . . Rejection letters . . . Getting baraged with Bar review material . . . Coming to school with $ change in your pocket for breakfast, lunch, and possibly dinner . . . Tuition increases . . . a new library with no bathroom and a schizophrenic ventilation system . . . Ralph Nader and Pat Schroeder at Hofstra . . . finally, a CPLR course at Hofstra, a steamy graduation . . . Pieper vs. Bar Bri . . . That Javits Center, Bar exam proctor, robot voice from hell . . .

EDITOR'S NOTE

Dear Class of 1992:

Sometimes you take on a project without actually realizing what is involved and only when you are too far do you truly realize what you’ve done. Well here are the results of such a difficult task.

I hope that I’ve been able to capture many of the aspects of our years at Hofstra Law School that you’d like to remember and as you glance back at these pages they will bring back enjoyable memories, make you smile and laugh or send a chill down your spine from the less enjoyable. If so, the job was well worth the effort.

I’d like to say thank you to you — the Class of 1992 for all of your contributions — portraits, candids and just being a part of the memories. A special thank you to Scott Stone who was always unselfishly there to help when it was needed the most.

Additionally, thank you to my predecessors for leaving photos and drawings, some of which were used in this yearbook. I must also thank Michael Sawchuk and Ed Thornton of Thornton Studios and Joe Donovan from Jostens/Hunter Publishing for their assistance and services.

Most of all I want to thank my family for always being there for me. Thanks!

Good Luck to all of you in all of your endeavors.
