A MESSAGE TO THE CLASS OF 1994

The first time that we will read our Law School Yearbooks will be right after receiving them — will our photographs reflect our individual suave sophistication gained after three years of Law School? Undoubtedly, the next time we will reach for our Yearbooks will be to look up our classmates; to reminisce about who has just referred a client to you; to reflect on who has just appeared in the New York Law Journal after winning an important case before the New York Court of Appeals; to remember who has just successfully made new law before the Supreme Court of the United States.

More than mere moments frozen in time, yearbooks are like time capsules. Pressed and sealed within are the accomplishments and successes of those that make them up. A message of belief in the future. Our Yearbook is no exception. Pressed within this book are our accomplishments and successes, as well as our hopes, ambitions and those other intangibles that made our class special and unique.
When the Class of 1994's Yearbook is open, what will be found is a rare and uncommon constituency, a diverse make up of individuals brought together by the single common goal to learn the law. It will reveal our message of hope and inspiration for the future.

In achieving our collective purpose we have more than travelled through three years; together we have traversed a course of self awareness. However, this knowledge is incomplete, and our lives our still unfolding before us. Further, our individual aspirations will carry many of us on journeys to district and separate jurisdictions. Nevertheless, the Hofstra University School of Law Class of 1994 has marked its place in time and shares the bonds of experience, friendship and the worthy goal of practicing law.

I have to work on proper posture.

Didn't Carl know the floor was just waxed?

And chapter 12 contains my personal recipes

What, the break is over?
They think it's coffee

Anytime now!

This exam answer is a new one on me

Are my nails dry yet?

Is there a time limit on this speaker?
So Doug, what's a terrapin?

Any pizza left?

If you come down, I'll give you a second chance

That question wasn't so tough
During their tenure as members of the three academic journals at Hofstra Law School, the graduating class has contributed countless hours to edit and publish scholarly articles which embody the "quality" of work product Hofstra students can achieve.

Their accomplishments, attained through excellence and dedication, are a reflection on the entire student body. The Journal members have shown that, given the opportunity to succeed, they are fully capable of maximizing the raw potentiality of their educations.

We wish the Journal members of the class of 1994 well

The Student Bar Association would like to wish everyone the best of luck in their future careers. We have worked hard to make your law school experience a pleasant one.

S.B.A. members devoted their own time to accomplish these tasks. We hope that as everyone ventures out into their chosen careers they will have the opportunity to take a leadership role at some point. It is an experience that is both exhilarating and frustrating, one that cannot be fully described within the confines of these pages, but which must be experienced. Some of you felt that your only task in law school was to go to classes and read the material. We hope that you will come to the forefront during your professional careers and realize that you can accomplish much.

We have been told throughout our years at Hofstra that as students we take back seats to no one. As you move on into the “real world,” take pride in Hofstra Law. Every time you achieve a goal, you enhance the reputation and prestige of this school.
