are herefore expressed to you, and I desire to state that the Union Government does not afford a place for the expression of the views of the people, as manifested in the past you occupy a place where the private views are half as outrageous as here. I fully believe it may with truth be said that not an instance can be adduced where any person of rank and reputation has conversed with you, but what they were not are by you perfectly satisfied of the present state of the country.

Concord, 3d mo. 22, 1814.

WHEREAS Hezekiah, my son, has absconded with my abode and taken two slaves with him; I forbids all persons from harboring or trusting either of them, and will pay nothing for them.
