

1977

Books Received

Follow this and additional works at: <http://scholarlycommons.law.hofstra.edu/hlr>

Recommended Citation

(1977) "Books Received," Hofstra Law Review: Vol. 5: Iss. 2, Article 8.

Available at: <http://scholarlycommons.law.hofstra.edu/hlr/vol5/iss2/8>

This document is brought to you for free and open access by Scholarly Commons at Hofstra Law. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hofstra Law Review by an authorized administrator of Scholarly Commons at Hofstra Law. For more information, please contact lawcls@hofstra.edu.

BOOKS RECEIVED

AMERICAN COURTS & JUSTICE. Edited by Glenn R. Winters and Edward J. Schoenbaum. Chicago, Illinois: The American Judicature Society, 1976. Pp. 271. $8.95. Prepared for Justice '76: A National Citizens' Assembly on Improving Courts and Justice, this collection of essays by prominent jurists and scholars provides a broad spectrum of opinion about the condition of American courts today. More specifically, the contributing authors evaluate the application of the constitutional mandate of equal justice under the law. The analyses examine the origins of the American judicial system, its present operation and the prospects for its effectiveness in the future. Among the contributors are Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Senator Birch Bayh, Judge David E. Bazelon and Judge Shirley M. Hufstедler.

ARBITRATION OF LABOR-MANAGEMENT DISPUTES. By Maurice S. Trotta. New York, New York: Amacom, 1974. Pp. viii, 499. $24.50. The student or practitioner of industrial relations should find this comprehensive review of the history, goals and methods of arbitration a valuable resource. Mr. Trotta examines the terminology and rationale of arbitration and explores its use and adaptation to both public and private dispute settlement. The effects of relevant statutes and case law are presented in his analysis of the development of arbitration procedures. Included are a sampling of typical issues and awards, a survey of the applicable legislation in the area, collective bargaining provisions and administrative forms.

CHANGING LAW: A BIOGRAPHY OF ARTHUR T. VANDERBILT. By Arthur T. Vanderbilt II. New Brunswick, New Jersey: Rutgers University Press, 1976. Pp. xiv, 271. $17.50. The book, researched and authored by the subject's grandson, provides a detailed account of Arthur T. Vanderbilt's efforts—through politics and the practice of law—to improve the administration of justice in America. The author traces his ancestor's controversial life as the leader of judicial reform through the turbulent political scene in New Jersey between 1906 and 1957. In portraying the experiences of one law reformer, the book presents an historical insight into the origins of the movement for modernization of the American judiciary.

FROM THE DIARIES OF FELIX FRANKFURTER. By Joseph P. Lash. New York, New York: W. W. Norton & Company, Inc., 1975. Pp. xiii, 366. $12.50. This combination of excerpts from Justice Frankfurter's diaries and a biographical essay prepared by Mr. Lash present a most interesting portrayal of one of the great legal scholars of our time. The diaries, written by one who expected them to be later published, present Justice Frankfurter as a friend, statesman and scholar. They offer the reader a unique opportunity to view from the inside the Presidential administrations of Taft, Roosevelt and Truman. Joseph Lash's thoughtful and thorough research has transformed the diaries of one of America's most distinguished men into a living portrait.

JUSTICE, LEGAL SYSTEMS, AND SOCIAL STRUCTURE. By H. Richard Hartzler. Port Washington, New York: The Kennikat Press, 1976. Pp. x, 134. $12.50. Drawing heavily upon the works of such scholars as Laswell, Smelser, Pound, Llewellyn, Howbel, Weber, Dahl and Lindblom, the author explores the inextricable relationships of justice, legal systems and social structures. Utilizing a rather formal, analytical and heavily diagrammatic approach, Mr. Hartzler integrates the theories of the various scholars in an attempt to evaluate the varying roles of the three concepts. In doing so, he confronts their delicate and unsettled affinities to societal goals, law and order, and the socio-economic and political processes. The author includes a hypothetical case as an opportunity for readers to employ their own judgment and notions of justice in reaching a verdict for the accused. The reader, though inevitably left with an inclination to support both analyses offered by the author, does at least develop an understanding of the issues involved.

MARGARET SANGER, AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY. New York, New York: Dover Publications, Inc., 1971. Pp. 496. $4.50, paperbound. This is a moving and dramatic account of the life of one of the most important figures in the history of the feminist movement. The author grew up in poverty and attributed many of society's ills to the problem of over-population. She became a nurse during an era in which few women were educated. While men around her organized and led the labor movement, she decided that women's burdens could be alleviated more through learning how to have fewer children than through "struggles for a few pennies." Margaret Sanger's confrontations with the law, the Church, the federal government and the scientific community to establish what she termed as "birth control" are truly heroic. Her autobiography is poignant, witty and highlighted by encounters with some of the world's most respected figures. (Originally published by W. W. Norton & Company, Inc., in 1938).

PHOTOGRAPHY: WHAT'S THE LAW? By Robert M. Cavallo and Stuart Kahan. New York, New York: Crown Publishers, Inc., 1976. Pp. xiv, 139. $9.95. In a simple and concise manner the authors succeed in surveying the state of the law as it relates to anyone using a camera. By using hypothetical problems, sample forms and by discussing the leading cases, this work educates the reader regarding ownership rights in photographs, when releases from the subjects of photographs are necessary and how to avoid liability for misrepresentation or copyright infringement. The work will be of interest to both private practitioners and laymen.

THE SHADOW GOVERNMENT. By Daniel Guttman and Barry Willner. New York, New York: Pantheon Books/Random House, Inc., 1976. Pp. xiv, 354. $10.00. Has the government delegated its decisionmaking powers by subcontracting its responsibilities to private consulting firms? The authors raise this issue in their work prepared for The Center for Study of Responsive Law. The result is a critical evaluation, through case studies, of consulting firms and their impact on fundamental social policy and public issues such as health, housing and education. Messrs. Guttman and Willner argue that as a result of the role these firms have come to occupy and the influence they exert, the public has been misled as to who is really making governmental decisions. This book will be valuable to attorneys who seek an understanding of what forces contribute to the formulation of federal policies.

THE TIDES OF POWER: CONVERSATIONS ON THE AMERICAN CONSTITUTION. By Bob Eckhardt and Charles L. Black, Jr. New Haven, Connecticut: Yale University Press, 1976. Pp. ix, 225. $10.95. The authors, through the use of informal conversation, discuss and analyze different aspects of the interaction among the three branches of government. Charles Black, Jr., a Sterling Professor of Law at Yale University, and Bob Eckhardt, a five-term Congressman from Texas, trace the development of each branch from its formation in the Constitution to the present day. The book examines the changes that have occurred during the intervening two hundred years regarding the governmental interrelationship and offers several substantive suggestions for its improvement within the traditional framework of the Constitution.

THE UNCONSCIOUS CONSPIRACY: WHY LEADERS CAN'T LEAD.

By Warren Bennis. New York, New York: Amacom, 1976. Pp. ix, 176. $9.95. The author deals with what he believes to be the current leadership crisis in our society and suggests its potential effect in the future. Based on a series of articles and conversations, Mr. Bennis offers some practical solutions to the problem. The author focuses on various factors affecting leadership in organizations and management and underscores the distinction between them. The book does not attempt to offer solutions as much as it seeks to identify the proper questions.

UNDERSTANDING THE ECONOMY: FOR PEOPLE WHO CAN'T STAND

ECONOMICS. By Alfred L. Malabre, Jr., New York, New York: Dodd, Mead & Company, 1975. Pp. x, 207. $8.95. The author, a former editor and columnist for The Wall Street Journal, presents a simplified analysis of "the economy" to enable the layman or student to better understand economic data. Recognizing the prevalence and importance of such data in the general public's decisionmaking process, the author underscores the failure of traditional educational methodology to provide a sufficient basis for reasonable economic analysis. By providing the basic information in simple terms, Mr. Malabre provides a sufficient perspective for the nonexpert to make reasonably intelligent assessments of daily economic developments without having to struggle through highly technical data written by economists for economists.

OTHER PUBLICATIONS

ADVERTISING AND LABELLING: LAWS IN THE COMMON MARKET.

By R. G. Lawson. London: Jordan & Sons Limited, 1975. Pp. xv, 393. Supplement, October 1975. Pp. 51. £20.00, looseleaf.

- A HISTORY OF REGULATORY TAXATION. By R. Alton Lee. Lexington, Kentucky: The University Press of Kentucky, 1973. Pp. xi, 228. $15.25.
- COPYRIGHT INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY—PUBLIC POLICY PART I. By Nicholas Henry. New York, New York: Marcel Dekker, Inc., 1975. Pp. viii, 140, $14.50.
- COPYRIGHT: INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY—PUBLIC POLICY, PART II. By Nicholas Henry. New York, New York: Marcel Dekker, Inc., 1976. Pp. viii, 166, $14.50.
- THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION PROCESS. Three Volumes. By Peter W. Greenwood, Jan M. Chaiken, Joan Petersilia and Linda Prusoff. Santa Monica, California: The Rand Corporation, 1975. Pp. 294. $15.00, paperbound.
- EXCHANGE CONTROL. By Anthony Parker. London: Jordan & Sons Limited, 1975. Pp. xv, 302. Supplement, May 1975 through March 1976, Pp. 29. £15.00, looseleaf.
- HOW TO ELIMINATE DISCRIMINATORY PRACTICES: A GUIDE TO EEO COMPLIANCE. By The Humanistic Designs Division of Information Science Incorporated. New York, New York: Amacom, 1975. Pp. x, 80. $12.95.
- RECENT DEVELOPMENTS IN JOB SECURITY: LAYOFFS AND DISCIPLINE IN THE PUBLIC SECTOR. By June Weisberger. Ithaca, New York: Institute of Public Employment, 1976. Pp. v, 51. $2.25, paperbound.
- SELLING THE PEOPLE'S CADILLAC: THE EDSSEL AND CORPORATE RESPONSIBILITY. By Jan G. Deutsch. New Haven, Connecticut: Yale University Press, 1976. Pp. 261. $20.00, cloth-bound; $8.95, paperbound.

