PLACEMENT OFFICE

The Hofstra University School of Law's Placement Office extends its services to all prospective employers who have hiring needs in terms of either full-time, part-time, or summer employment.

Interviews: The Placement Office will set up on-campus interviews for any employer who wishes to recruit at the Law School. All arrangements including the preparation of resumes to be sent out in advance of an interview date, are made by the Placement Office. This service is available throughout the year.

Forwarding Resumes: For those employers that are unable to visit the Law School but are interested in recruiting Hofstra students, the Placement Office will direct the resumes of interested and qualified students to prospective employers.

Part-time Employment: A substantial number of Hofstra students work part-time during the school year. The Placement Office encourages employers to use students on a part-time basis. Although Hofstra is located in Nassau County, students live all over the metropolitan area and are available to work throughout this area.

Summer Employment: Most law students attempt to find law related summer jobs. You are encouraged to hire qualified students anxious to work during the summer. A substantial number of law students participate in the federal work-study program through which government and non-profit employers are able to hire students at a minimal cost to the employer.

Graduates: The Placement Office keeps in touch with its alumni(ae) and hirers are encouraged to contact the Placement Office if they are seeking to employ more experienced attorneys.

General Information: The Placement Office is available to answer any inquiries you might have about the school or the job market.

The Placement Office offers a valuable resource. Please use it.

In keeping with this fantastic age of space ships and electronic computers, our own emphasis is on speed in the citation phase of legal research.

By means of the proper Reporter edition of Shepard's Citations it is frequently possible to trace a decision of any state or federal court throughout every state and federal jurisdiction in fifty seconds or less!

Both Shepard state editions and Reporter editions stress safety as well as speed. Consequently, tens of thousands of attorneys rely on Shepard's Citations not only for swiftness but also for accuracy and completeness when testing case and statute authorities.

The many time and labor saving features of Shepard's Citations are carefully explained in our booklet entitled "How to Use Shepard's Citations". A copy will be sent to you on request.
